THE TRUTH ABOUT GENEVA

BRITISH WHITE PAPER

ANSWER TO VON NEURATH

London, Oct. 20.

Publication to-day of White Paper containing a full account of last Saturday's proceedings of the Bureau of the Disarmament Conference at Geneva, has served to focus attention once again on the stage which the Disarmament Conference proceedings had reached before the withdrawal of Germany was announced.

It provides a full answer to the suggestions made in Germany that Sir John Simon misrepresented the course of the conversations between the Powers which preceded the meeting.

It was as rapporteur, and at the request of the President, Mr. Arthur Henderson, that Sir John Simon indicated the main trend of the suggestions made in these conversations for amending the British draft, for achieving an agreed convention.

The account of the conversations given by Sir John Simon was fully endorsed by the other delegates.

U. S. STATEMENT.

Mr. Norman Davis, the United States delegate, in the course of his brief statement, confirmed Sir John Simon's account and gave his full support to the statement he made emphasizing that his Government had taken up the position that the Disarmament Convention could not possibly be made an instrument for rearmament and that the qualitative equality of armaments should primarily be sought through a reduction of the armaments of the heavily-armed Powers and not through action on the part of others to attempt to build up.

ITALY'S SUPPORT.

The Italian delegate, Signor Soradna also endorsed the statement and expressed the hope and confidence that the world, as did Italy, would find in the programme outlined by Sir John Simon a basis for its subsequent work.

The Belgian delegate, Mr. Bourquin, also declared that it was absolutely essential that the efforts of the Conference should not end in rearmament and was convinced that the first stage, such as was contemplated, was indispensable in the present state of affairs as it would give experience in the working of the convention.

As to the length of the first period, M. Paul Boncour, the French delegate, indicated that the period of four years to which Sir John Simon referred in his speech had not been selected arbitrarily; it was based on a number of considerations to which the French delegation attached great importance.—British Wireless.

EUROPE'S UNEASE.

London, Oct. 20.

TREASURY BILLS

ALLOTMENT MADE OF £45,000,000

London, Oct. 20.
The total of £80,470,000 was applied for in Treasury Bills at to-day's weekly tenders.
The amount allotted in Treasury Bills at three months was £45,000,000. The average rate per cent. was 16/0.823 as compared with 12/10.894 last week.—British Wireless.

LONDON'S BIG SLUM SCHEME

Thirty-Five Millions to Be Spent

London, Oct. 20.

Preparations for the London County Council £35,000,000 slum clearance and housing scheme are now complete. The timber contracts alone, it is anticipated, will amount to £1,500,000.

About 195,000,000 feet of wood will be required for floors and other constructional work. Preference will be given to British and Empire sources of supplies, a particular opportunity being provided for Canadian timber.—British Wireless.

THE FARM REVOLT

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT TO BROADCAST

NORTH DAKOTA ORDERS

Washington, Oct. 20.

President Roosevelt has decided to broadcast to the nation at 10 p.m. E.S.T. on Sunday on "many subjects of current interest and importance."

The Farm Administration is hastening plans to remedy the situation in the Middle West, which will probably include cash loans to wheat and corn farmers who have reduced their acreage.

The farm organizations' representatives will meet at Washington on Sunday to renew their campaign demanding the inflation of the currency.

It is understood that they will also demand the establishment of government banks and the refinancing of farm mortgages.

The Governor of North Dakota has ordered the sheriffs of the State's fifty-three counties to take steps to prevent wheat shipments in compliance with the embargo that he has declared with the object of forcing up prices by withholding supplies.—Reuter.

ICE COMPANY'S SMALL LOSS

DIRECTORS' REPORT

Subject to audit, the Directors of the Hongkong and Canton Ice Manufacturing Co. Ltd. will recommend that the loss of $1,825.32 made during the year ended 31st July last be deducted from the sum of $3,718.01 carried forward from last year's accounts, thus leaving a balance of $1,892.69 to carry forward.

Buildings and Machinery have been depreciated to the extent of $10,000.00, while the sum of $10,316.80 was expended under the heading Repairs and Renewals during the year.

The Kowloon Fire Brigade were summoned to a fire at Tsang Foo Villas, Kowloon City at 10.30 last night. A range of wooden sheds had caught fire and one was gutted before the outbreak was subdued.

Subscriptions which will be acknowledged in due course have raised the total of the Cheer-O Club Building Fund to over $22,000.

NEWLY OUT FROM ENGLAND

HUSBANDS ABOARD THE EAGLE

THE WIVES OF TWO BRITISH NAVAL OFFICERS LOST THEIR LIVES IN THE TYPHOON DISASTER WHICH OVERWHELMED THE O.S.K. STEAMER YASHIMA MARU IN THE INLAND SEA YESTERDAY.

Mrs. Prevost, the wife of Lieut. Commander E. J. Prevost, of the aircraft-carrier, H.M.S. Eagle, and were the victims of the tragic affair, in which at least one hundred and twenty persons perished.

Mrs. Milner-Barry, the wife of Lieut. Commander J. O'B. Milner-Barry, also of H.M.S. Eagle

Poignancy is added to the shocking nature of the disaster by the fact that both Mrs. Prevost and Mrs. Milner-Barry were quite newly married and had only recently come out to the Far East to join their husbands on the China Station.

SCANTY DETAILS OF THE TRAGEDY

Local naval circles have been profoundly shocked by the news of the tragedy.

Reuter, in stating that both British lady passengers aboard the Yashima Maru had died, added that it was not quite certain which was which.

WASHED ASHORE.

One of the deceased ladies was rescued from the sea by one of the steamers which raced to the rescue on picking up S.O.S. messages from the Yashima Maru, but died later as the result of shock and immersion.

The body of a beautiful bob-haired woman of about twenty was washed ashore after the sinking of the Yashima Maru, confirming fears. This is believed to be Mrs. E. J. Prevost, Reuter's correspondent in Tokyo stating that the lady who died after rescue, and who was older than her companion, is believed to have been Mrs. Milner-Barry.

FIFTY-NINE STILL MISSING.

Nine of those rescued have since recovered.

Fifty-nine are still missing.

One of the missing is believed to be a man of British nationality, who was travelling third-class. His name is reported to have been Sarlana.

It was first believed that the British lady victims were the wives of officers in H.M.S. Kent, at present in Kobe, but further enquiries resulted in identification.

H.M.S. Eagle is due in Hongkong next week.

TYPHOON TRAGEDY.

First reports said that the Yashima Maru had turned turtle after fire had broken out aboard, which the crew fought valiantly but fruitlessly. Later information, however, showed that there was no fire but that the ship was overcome in a typhoon. Two vessels rushed to her aid in answer to wireless calls for assistance, but were hampered by heavy seas.

It is believed that these and other ships rescued 61 persons. The Yashima Maru was formerly a British mine-sweeper, the Sunflower, and was converted to passenger service recently. She left Boppu yesterday for Kobe.

She was built in 1915 at Henderson and Company's yards in Glasgow, and was a vessel of 947 tons gross.—Reuter.

MILITARY LOSS

DEATH OF COL WATSON

FUNERAL TO-DAY AT 12.15

A shock has been caused in local Military circles by the death, which occurred at the War Memorial Hospital last evening following a sudden stroke, of Colonel Arthur Hugh Kinnaird Watson, the Assistant Director of Supplies and Transport, China, since 1931.

Col. Watson came to Hongkong two years ago and during his stay here has endeared himself to officers and men alike. He was taken ill about three days ago and removed to hospital. His condition, however, did not improve and he passed away last evening at about 8.30 p.m.

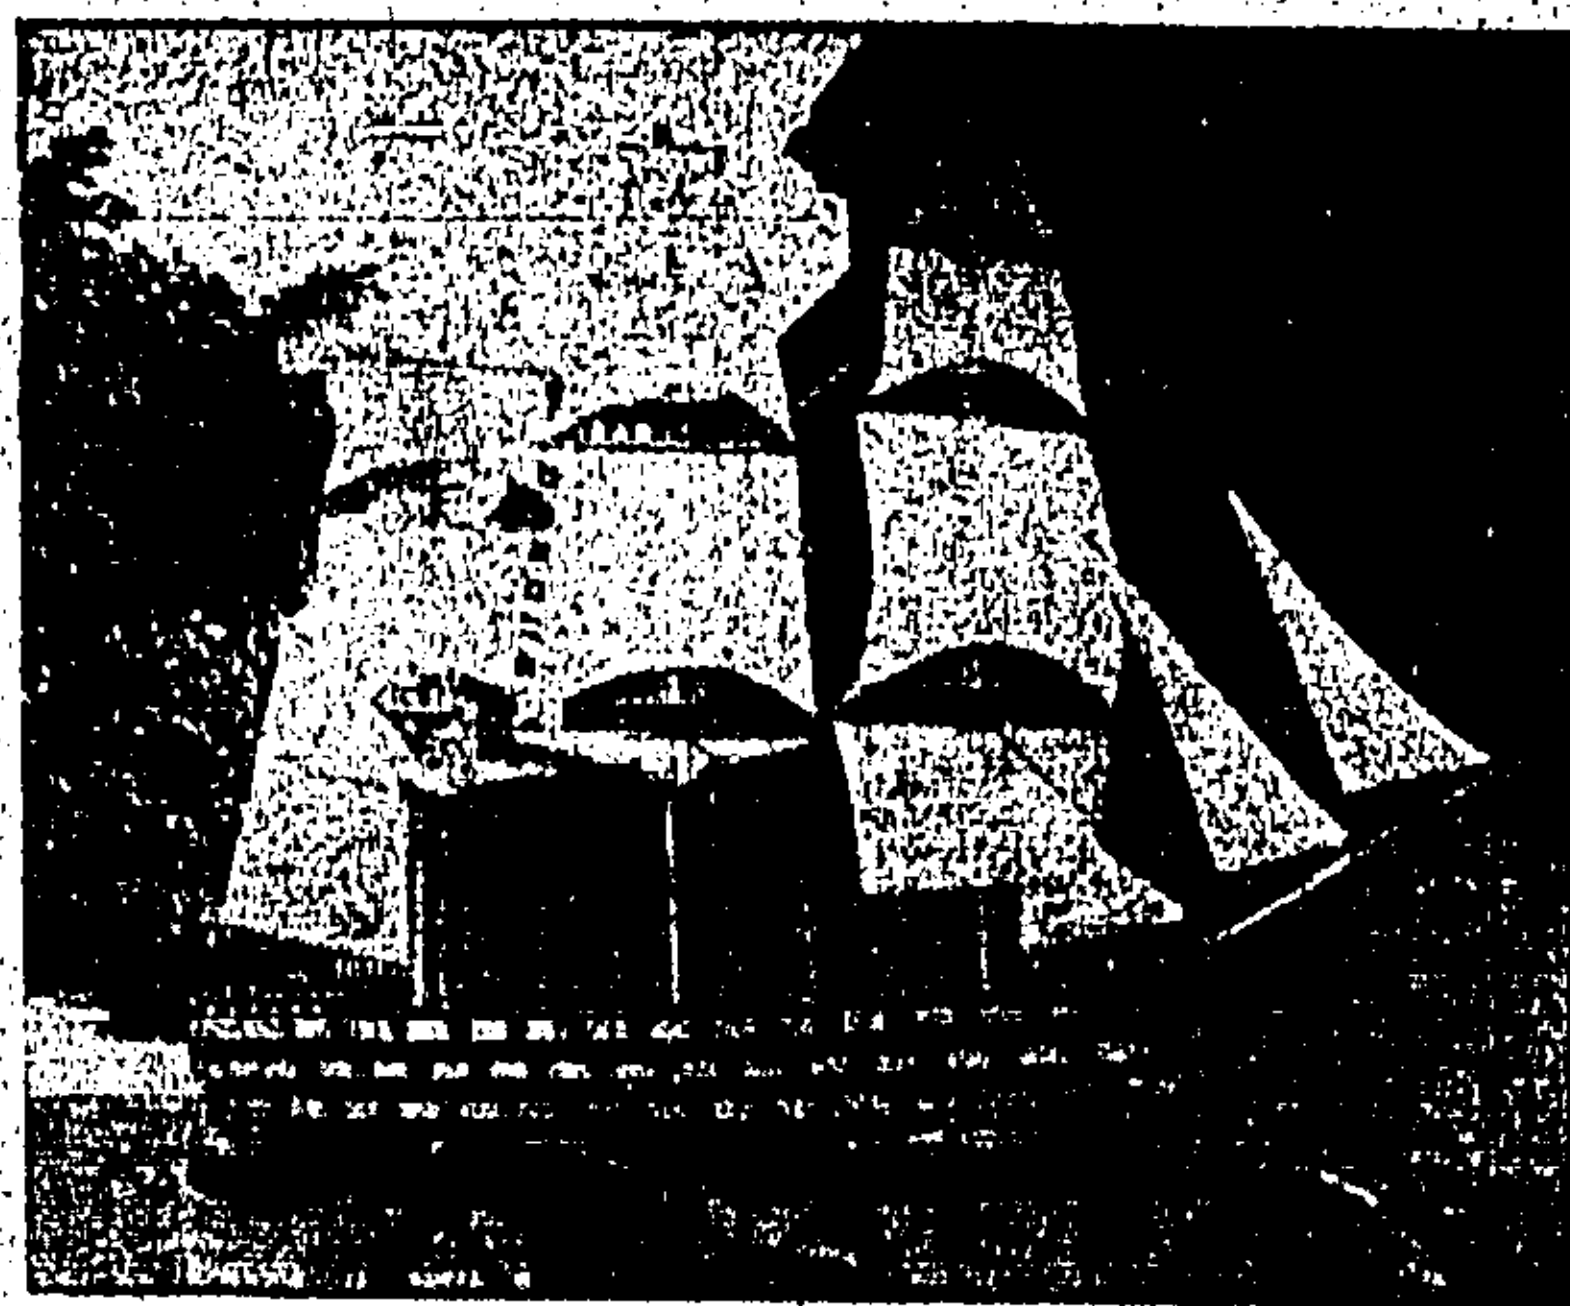

THIRTY YEARS IN ARMY.

Col. Watson, who was 62 years of age, joined the Army Service Corps as a 2nd Lieutenant in 1902 and two years later was promoted to the rank of Lieutenant. In 1911 he was made Captain and just prior to the outbreak of War in 1914 was appointed a Major in the R.A.S.C. and was acting Lieutenant Colonel from October 1916 until March 1919. In May 1918 he was promoted to the rank of Brevet Lieutenant Colonel, the appointment being substantiated in 1929. He was appointed A.D. of S. and T. to China in July 1931.

WAR SERVICE.

Col. Watson saw service in the South African War in 1901 and 1902, and during the Great War in Greece, Macedonia, Serbia, Bulgaria, European Turkey, and the Islands of the Aegean Sea. He was mentioned in despatches in 1917. He won the Queen's Medal and Clasp during the South African War and during the Great War the British War Medal and the Victory Medal.

The funeral, with full military honours, takes place this morning leaving Wellington Barracks for Happy Valley at 12.15 p.m. One Battalion of the South Wales Borderers will be in attendance and a firing party will also be drawn from the Borderers.

He has been Director of the William Kerkhoff Laboratories of Biological Sciences since 1923, and is a foreign member of the Royal Society.

The award was made in recognition of Professor Morgan's discoveries concerning the eugenic functions of chromosomes.—Reuter.

ANOTHER TAXI INCIDENT

DRIVER ROBBED BY WELL-DRESSED MAN

Police are investigating a second robbery, in which the victim is a taxi driver, which occurred on the Waterloo Road near the Western entrance of the Kowloon Hospital at 11 p.m. last night. The driver, though not so seriously assaulted as the driver victim of the Castle Peak Road affair a few days ago, was robbed of $16. His driver's licence and $1.37 in money was picked up near the scene of the theft.

Chan Fook, the driver, in his report to the Police after returning to the Company with the vehicle, said that he was driving in Nathan Road when at the junction of Jordan Road a Chinese dressed in European style clothing and having respectable appearance, boarded the taxi. He instructed him to drive to Kwei Lin Street. On arrival there three others joined the party. They then told him to drive to Kowloon Tong and when in Waterloo Road requested the driver to diverge the course of Kowloon Hospital. The driver was then set upon and the vehicle stopped. He was robbed of $16 and the attackers fled across the road towards Tai Shok Ku.

Shouts for assistance were of no avail, and the victim drove back to the Company where he made a report and later told his story at the Police Station.

SOVIET AND AMERICA

PRESIDENT SENDS INVITATION

ON RECOGNITION ISSUE

Washington, Oct. 20.

Recognition of the Soviet Government by the United States has advanced a giant stride by an announcement that President Roosevelt has invited a Soviet representative to visit Washington.

It is emphasised that the act of the White House, in opening the door for negotiations, does not in itself constitute recognition.

Generally speaking, however, no doubts are entertained the recognition will become effective shortly.

It is learned that M. Kalinin is sending M. Litvinoff to conduct the negotiations.

PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE.

In his message to the Soviet Government President Roosevelt voices his regret that two great nations should be without any practical method of direct intercourse and expressed a hope that they will succeed in reaching a satisfactory solution of the problems involved.

M. Kalinin, in his reply, says that American and Soviet difficulties are not insoluble. They can be removed by frank and friendly conversations.

The abnormal situation, he adds, has hitherto had an unfavourable effect not only between the two States concerned but on the general international situation.—Reuter.

SESSIONS TECHNICALITY

CONVICTED MAN AGAIN IN COURT

Sentenced to five years' imprisonment on Thursday for throwing corrosive acid at his mistress, Ng Wah appeared before the Pulane Judge, Mr. R.E. Lindsell this morning to be dealt with on a charge of assault in connection with the same offence. The prosecution had wished to withdraw the charge on gaining the conviction of prisoner on the more serious indictment but he had already pleaded guilty.

His Lordship imposed a sentence of seven days' hard labour concurrent with the five years.

across the road towards Tai Shok Ku. Shouts for assistance were of no avail, and the victim drove back to the Company where he made a report and later told his story at the Police Station.

GERMAN ELECTIONS

GOEBBELS OPENS THE CAMPAIGN

VOTE FOR HITLER

Berlin, Oct. 20.

The German Government has no intention of attempting to Nazify the world, declared Herr Goebbels, the Minister of Propaganda, opening the election campaign to-night.

He addressed a very enthusiastic meeting attended by over ten thousand people and he claimed that Germany had done the world no wrong and that all Germany wanted was lasting peace with France.

Germany wanted nothing to do with other governments unless they were prepared to believe their word of honour.

Germany would need four years in which to complete her programme, but she had already reduced unemployment by one-third.

He concluded with an impassioned appeal to vote for Hitler on November 12.

"YES" OR "NO".

An entirely new procedure in parliamentary elections will be inaugurated when the German Reichstag elections take place.

Instead of the voting papers, bearing the names of the parties or individual candidates, for whom the elector is asked to record his vote, each elector will be handed a card on which he may simply inscribe the word "Yes" or "No."

"Yes" will imply that the elector is voting for the National Socialist Party list, since the latter is the only party now existing in Germany.

PLEBISCITE METHOD.

This procedure is similar to that adopted in the plebiscites and will likewise be followed at the referendum to be taken on the same day, regarding Germany's withdrawal from the League of Nations and the Disarmament Conference.

The former German law prescribing that any party not hitherto represented in the Reichstag may put up its own candidates in the electoral districts, provided that its proposed candidates can produce at least 60,000 signatures in support of their candidature, was abrogated by a new law enacted July 14, last, which prohibits the formation of political parties.—Reuter.

ATTACK ON LEAGUE.

Berlin, Oct. 20.
An anti-Fascist mass meeting was the description given to the League of Nations to-night in an unofficial broadcast commenting upon the official Note of Germany's withdrawal.

The broadcaster added that by letting itself be made a platform for Jewish and Marxist petitions and an anti-Fascist mass meeting, the League had lost its last claim to be regarded as a universal organisation for the civilised world. Ten million copies of the Government's election campaign manifesto will be published during the week-end. The ballot papers have been cleverly amended to read: Do you German man and German woman sanction the policy of your Reichsgovernment.—Reuter.

STOP PRESS

It is learned authoritatively that Mrs. Milner-Barry and Mrs. Prevost, after visiting husbands, were returning from Boppu to Kobe, whence they were due to sail for Hongkong to await the return of the Eagle.

Eagle is scheduled to leave Boppu to-day, proceeding on an official visit to Kagoshima.

COTTONS AND LINENS IN FOREFRONT OF FASHION

Cottons and linens are fashionable just now. Very gay indeed is this crisp linen frock (left) in modernistic printed design. It has that new high neckline, gathered up by a draw-string of white pique which ties in Ascot fashion.

The sailor collar is just in again, and it has the dashing quality that youth demands in this white pique coat (right). It completes an ensemble when topped a corded cotton frock that has a skirt of red with white stripes and which then goes into reverse to have its sleeveless top of white with red stripes.

GLORIFYING YOURSELF

Too Much Sun May Injure the Hair

By Alicia Hart.

Long hours spent on the beach can "make" or "break" your beauty. A reasonable amount of sunshine is good for your health and fine for your skin. Too much may make you ill and mar your complexion and hair.

A sun tanned complexion is very chic. But don't overdo it. A red nose and peeling skin are decidedly unattractive.

Take along a lotion or cream designed to keep your skin from burning and blistering. Smear it on parts of your body that you expect will be exposed to the sun for any length of time.

Coloured glasses or an eye-shade should be given consideration. Too many hours in the bright sun are not good for your eyes. When you get back to your room, remove the glasses and bathe your eyes in a very weak solution of boracic acid. It rests them and removes any foreign particles of dirt and sand.

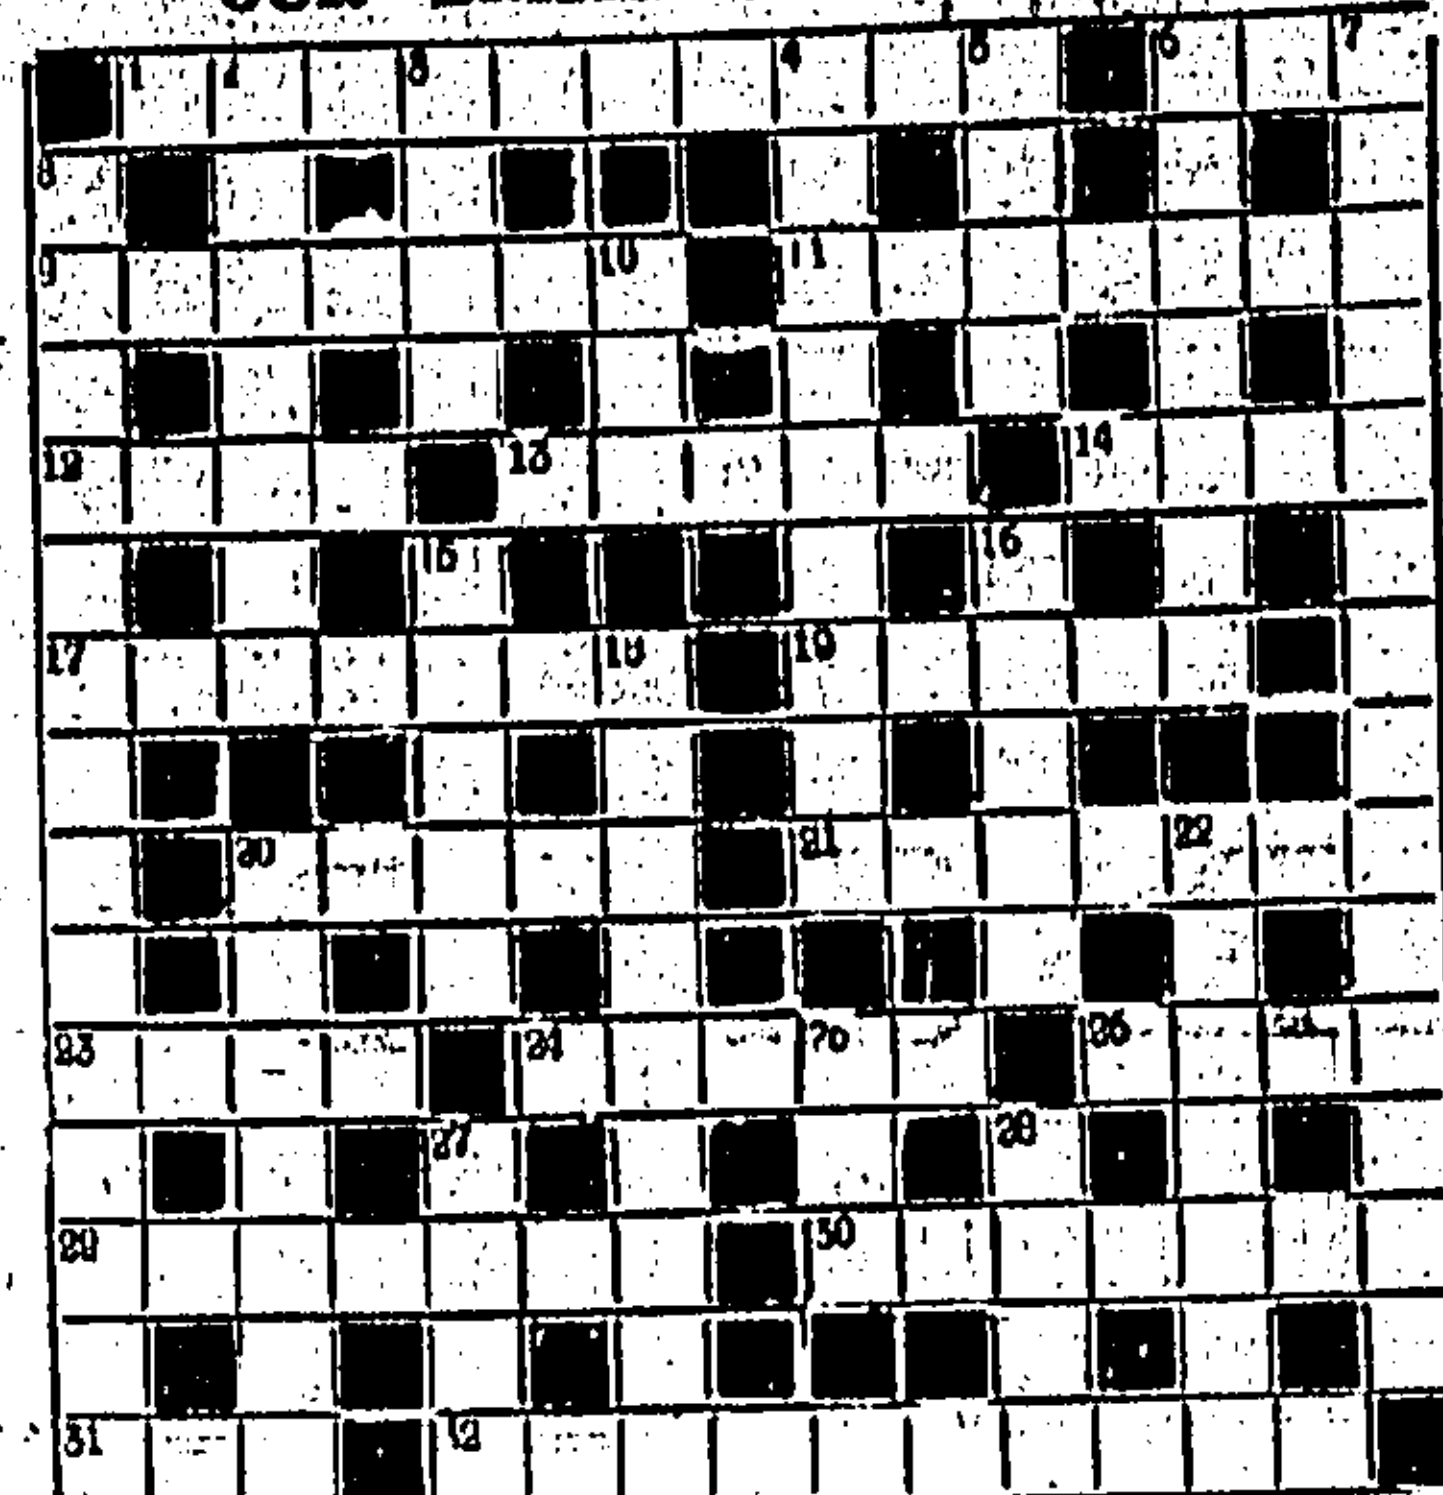

Be careful of your hair. Excess baking in the sun tends to dry out both the scalp and hair. If you wrap a strip of chamois around your hair before you put on a bathing cap, the water will be less apt to seep in under the edges of the cap.

Always rinse the salt water out of your hair after each swim. You can do it very easily while you're taking a fresh water shower. And plan to give yourself some hot oil shampoos when you get back home.

I'm glad there is no prohibition against the Demon Rhum-bn.

YOUR CHILDREN.

Curb Tendency to Criticize Husbands

By Olive-Roberta Barton.

"Daddy, come on out in the boat, won't you?"

"I'm sorry, Billy, I can't to-day. I promised Mr. Steel to play golf. To-morrow you and I can go fishing."

"You said that yesterday."

"I know I did. I didn't know Steel was going to turn up. But he's driven thirty miles to play with me, and I can't go back on him. Good-bye, sonny. You get worms and we'll go sure to-morrow."

"Where's your father?"

"He drove over to the club to play golf."

"That's the way he does," said Billy's mother. "Thinks his friends are more important than his boy. And that old golf makes me furious. Here we come away for a holiday and he just walks off and leaves us alone."

A Complaint

She was soon playing bridge with some other ladies, and Billy went down to the pony farm with a friend. They put in the afternoon very nicely.

That evening they all took a drive. Billy wanted to see the lighthouse, so they went there.

Then Billy wanted to go to the Carnival, but his father said he was tired and as they were to get up early they had better go home.

"You don't do anything William wants," his wife complained. "You are always finding some excuse."

"I'm on a holiday Jean. I do all I can to show him—a good time. But I am too busy at home trying to earn a living for us to take much time off for myself. And when I get away, surely I have a little right to do what I want once in a while. I go about fifty-fifty with Billy, don't I, kid? And he can have a good time without you or me every second. And you'd rather play bridge a minute than fish an hour, or the other way round. You don't play golf or I'd play with you. Stop making me out such a heck of a fellow."

Too Quick to Place Blame

"It's all right, dad," said Billy hastily. "I guess I'm to blame. I complain too much."

But this little episode was typical of the situation in that family. The boy's mother was a bit too quick to lay the blame for everything on her husband, and to voice it to her son.

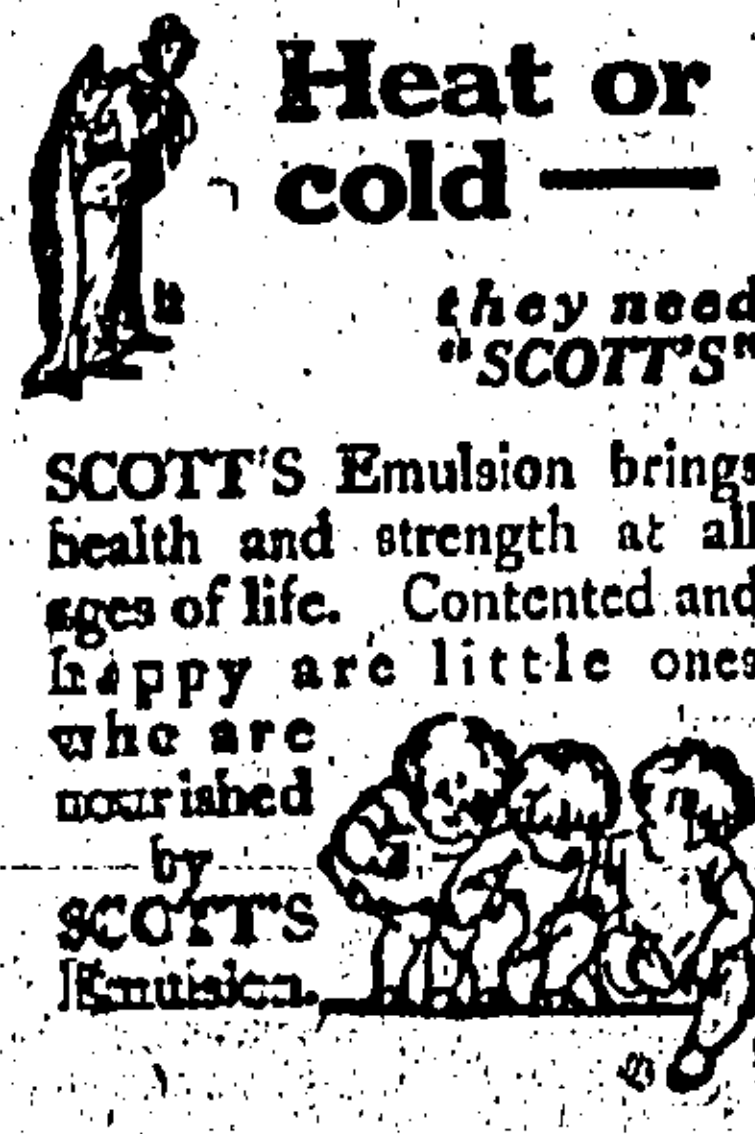

It is true that many men are too neglectful or indifferent to their children. Their wives, too. But I believe nearly all women have a certain tendency toward criticism of the male.

Children soon pick it up. It isn't a good idea. After all, men are but boys grown up. A wife has to play mother part of the time to this other big child of hers.

"SHADOWS BY THE SEA"

A Summer Mystery BY J. JEFFERSON FARJEON.

SYNOPSIS

Leonard Sefton, visiting the seaside resort, Craterley, discovers the town in excitement over the disappearance of the proprietor of the Mermaid Hotel. The story of the man's daughter, Jessica Fyne, intrigues him and he decides to investigate. A mysterious stranger is found dead at the foot of the cliffs soon after his arrival. The boy discovers the tragedy runs for assistance. When he returns with Sefton, the body is no longer to be seen.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER V

"Gathering Shadows."

"Tell me," enquired Leonard Sefton, eyeing the bewildered little figure at his side, "are you in the habit of seeing things?"

"E was there," stammered the boy.

"Perhaps he was—but now he isn't," answered Leonard. "So we're up against the supposition that a perfectly dead man has got up and walked away."

"D'ye mean yer don't believe me, sir?" asked the boy.

"I do believe you," responded Leonard, and all at once he patted the lad's shoulder; for, truly, Jim made a somewhat pathetic figure in his present bewilderment and fear.

"I knew you wouldn't tell lies."

"What'd I do that for?"

"Exactly. So, you see, I believe you. But we've got to get to the bottom of this, haven't we, so you must forgive me for asking all sorts of questions. Now, I've an idea. Let's divide what we know from what we think. Shall we?"

"Yes, sir."

"Right. Then, to begin with, we know that someone was lying here, on these rocks, a little while ago."

"Yes, sir."

"We know that."

"Yes, sir. Face up, eyes staring."

"Right. Face up, eyes staring. Now, we think he was dead—"

"No, we know it, sir."

"Come," protested Leonard, "we don't know that. We think it."

"I know it," retorted Jim, solemnly, "but you can think it, if you likes."

"How do you know it? We must be reasonable. You say his chest wasn't moving. Did you put your ear to his heart?"

"No fear!"

"Then—"

"It ain't no good, sir," interposed Jim. "There's another way of tellin'."

"Let's hear it, sonny?"

"By—the eyes," murmured Jim, uncomfortably.

Leonard nodded thoughtfully.

"Very well. For the sake of argument—or, rather, to save argument—we'll say we know he was dead. One, we know he was here. Two, we know he was dead. Three—we know he's not here."

Leonard paused. "Where does that lead us to?"

"Dunno, sir," muttered Jim.

"Things that seem improbable are happening every day," went on Leonard. "Thousands of times a day, if you counted 'em up. But things that are impossible never happen at all. Well—let's have a look for our disappearing friend. This is rather in your line, isn't it?—reading in the sand."

They searched for ten minutes, without result. The base of the cliffs, scarred and rocky, lay mainly in deep shadow, but some few yards from the base the shadow ended, forming a border line beyond which the sun still warmed and dazzled the yellow beach. In this dazzling space between the shadows and the sea they searched for clues, as well as in the darker spaces; but they found nothing to reward them for their pains, and they returned at last to the spot where the missing man had lain.

"Blank," observed Leonard.

"For the moment, anyhow. By the way, did you find out anything about those foot-prints you were studying when I met you this afternoon?"

"Ah—I forgot them," exclaimed Jim, suddenly, and brought out his note-book.

"Hallo, you do the thing in proper style," remarked Leonard, watching him with smiling interest. "You're a regular Record Department."

"I jots down a few things," answered Jim, pleased, "cos, if yer don't, yer forgits 'em. I orior've told yer before, sir, that them foot-prints was 'is."

"Well, that might be important," responded Leonard. "But are we to include this among the things we know or the things we think?"

"I knows it," returned the boy. "They was size ten, pointin' south, and they wasn't there at 1.9 p.m. But they was there at 3.28 p.m.—that was just afore you comes along, sir."

"Upon my soul, you really are a Record Department," exclaimed Leonard. "Well—and he also came along after I did?"

"Yes, sir."

"I see. Before and after."

"That's it, sir."

"But how do you know they were his foot-prints?"

"Easy. I compares 'em with the new 'uns 'e makes when 'e walks away from me."

"Well done. Now we've got another point to start from. A well-dressed gent comes along this stretch of sand from the north—presumably from or round that point there—Craterley Point, isn't it?—and walks southwards. He does this between 1.9 and 3.28 this afternoon. He leaves his foot-prints, which however, are now washed away, you observe."

"Yes, sir," agreed Jim.

"We don't know what he does on the beach. We would like to know. We would like to know very much. But we do know that, soon after 3.28 he turns round and walks northwards again, meeting you. Am I right?"

"Yes, sir."

"You have your chat. His foot-prints next travel to the gap. Here they are. We can trace them from the sea's edge, but, when they reach the gap..."

He paused, and gazed at the upward-climbing path. "I'm—we'll see in a minute. He went up that path there. And again we lose sight of him until he comes down again—over the cliff, eh?"

Again Leonard studied the upward path. "Yes, over the cliff,

I think," he added, slowly. "You see, there are no returning foot-prints corresponding with those going up. He had a big foot—"

"Size ten, sir."

"Yes—so I gather. Now, listen. If our well-dressed gent fell over the cliff, he must be alive, because in that case no one would have had any interest in moving his body but himself. But if he didn't fall over the cliff—if he was pushed over—"

"Pushed over, sir," blinked Jim, soberly.

"Yes. If he were pushed over, then, perhaps..."

Jim waited breathlessly, but his companion did not finish the sentence. Instead, he turned towards the gap, and began slowly walking up it.

Jim followed him. They traced the size-ten footprints to the top, and a little way along the road towards the Mermaid Hotel. But suddenly Leonard gave an exclamation.

"Look here, my lad!" he cried. "I've a notion we'll track these prints hotelwards a little later on. For here they are returning—"

Thank goodness there hasn't been any rain lately, and the roads are nice and dusty. See them?"

"Yes, sir," added Jim.

"And look—they don't go down the gap, as we know, but turn off along the top—towards those bushes near the edge. Come along. I rather think we are now following that poor fellow on his last journey!"

They traced the marks till they were lost in the undergrowth. This did not end Leonard's search, however. He continued a probable course to the edge of the cliff, and poked around for several minutes. There he gave another exclamation, and, stooping, picked something up.

"What is it, sir?" asked Jim.

Leonard did not reply at once. His fingers closed over his find, and he turned slowly towards his interrogator.

"Our friend was well-dressed, you say," he remarked. "Ordinary lounge suit, eh?"

"Yes, sir."

"Then he wouldn't have been wearing a dirty gold button—like this?"

And Leonard opened his hand, displaying a once-bright button, such as are worn by seamen.

"Rather close to the edge, isn't it?" said Leonard, as he slipped it into his pocket. "Rather close to a bush containing some recently-snapped twigs. Do you know, my son, I'd be rather interested to meet the man who once wore this button."

They retraced their way to the lane, and followed the size ten foot-prints that went hotelwards. They followed them right to the hotel, and saw them faintly written in the gravel that lay between the gate and the front porch. Here, Miss Fyne met them, and she looked into two very solemn faces.

"Well?" she asked. "Is he dead?"

"We can only conjecture," replied Leonard, in a puzzled voice. "He's not there."

"Not there?" she exclaimed.

"No. Let's go into your office and chat, Miss Fyne. And you'd better get back to your work, my lad—I'm sure you've plenty to do," he added, to the boy. "Not a word to anyone yet, remember. You're my second-in-command, and are under orders."

"Yes, sir," answered Jim. "I won't tell nobody nothin'." When they were alone, Leonard's first remark was a question: "Has anything happened here since I left you?"

"Nothing," she replied. "Why? Did you expect something to happen?"

"No. But—I shall keep nothing back from you, Miss Fyne—my feeling is that anything may happen. This is really a very queer business. The others are still playing tennis?"

"Yes."

"And—know nothing?"

"I haven't spoken to them."

"Perhaps it's just as well—for the moment. We don't want to raise unnecessary alarms, do we? And, after all—a story about a dead man who gets up and runs away—again immediately afterwards—is a bit fantastic, isn't it?"

She nodded. "But—don't you believe it, then?"

"Yes. I'm sure your boy—what's his name?"

"Jim."

"Thanks. I'm sure Jim was telling the truth. But I can't see that any special point will be gained in trying to prove this truth to others."

"Perhaps not. But you'll tell the police?"

"Do you want me to?"

She hesitated. "I don't know," she answered. "The whole thing is so bewildering, I hardly know what is best to do."

Let's postpone the police for a little while," he suggested, after a moment's reflection. "I've an idea we may get on a little faster without them—and I'm sure you don't want them hanging around. There's something I haven't told you yet. Our disappearing man came here this afternoon—"

"What! Here?" cried Miss Fyne, startled.

"Yes. I've tracked his steps to your front-door, and he must have come soon after I did. Now—who saw him?"

Miss Fyne jumped up, and pressed a bell. "I'll soon find that out," she said; and, a few moments later, she was addressing Luigi.

No, Luigi knew nothing. No one had come that he could say. Oh, yes he was quite sure. There was no doubt.

Florence the maid was next sent for. She had not answered the bell, either. She did not know of anyone who had called. Ah—but there was someone. Yes, of course, Luigi had told somebody the way.

Luigi was recalled. He looked a little flustered when he was challenged by Florence.

"Oh, yes, I forget!" he exclaimed, penitently. "It is not important, so I sink it is nosing. A man—yes, he come. Si, si! He come, and he aska the way. I tell 'im. Zat is all."

"When was this?" demanded Leonard.

"At tea time."

"And—what kind of a man was it?"

"Oh—a leetle man. Ver' small. Wiz a leetle moustache. Not recche. Poor."

"I see," said Leonard, slowly. And then shot out, "Where did he want to go to?"

Two minutes later, Leonard was again alone with Jessica Fyne.

"Anything strike you?" he asked.

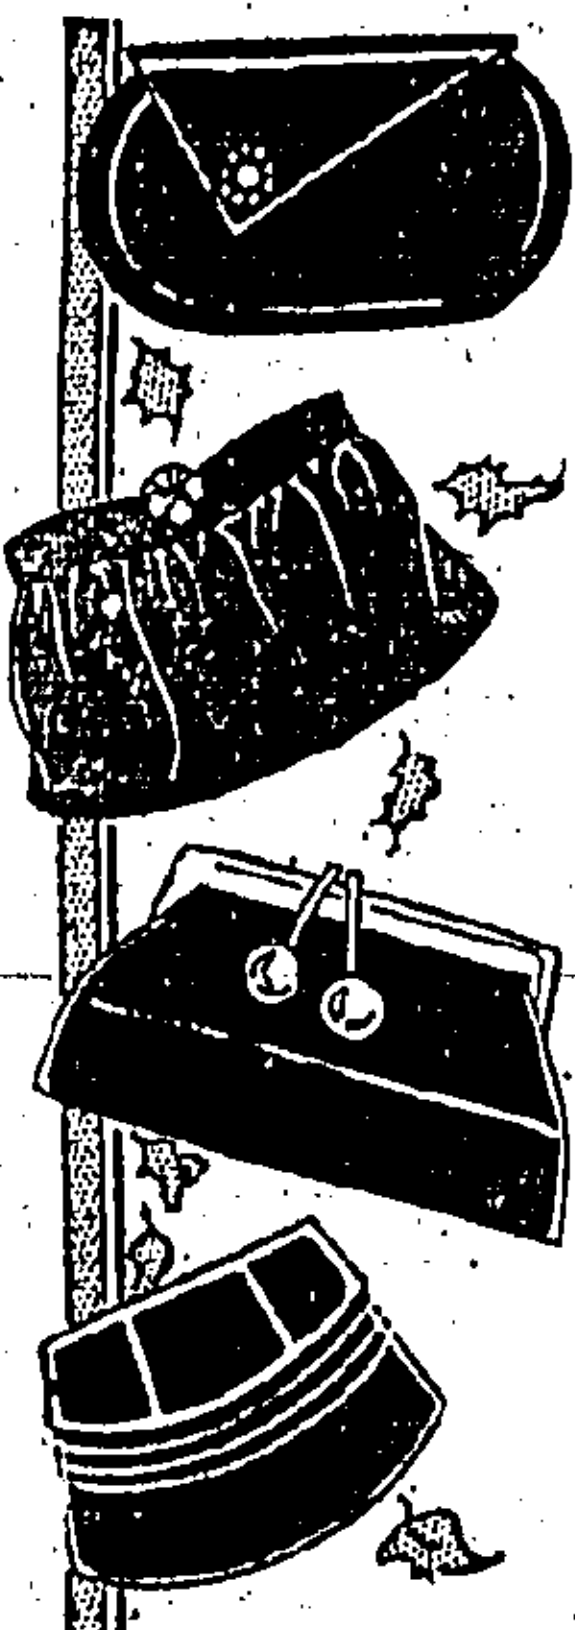

"It struck me that Luigi took a long while to remember where the

Do you ever suffer from Head-ache, Cough, Cold, Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Gout, Sore-throat, Toothache, or Asthma? If you do, will you allow us to solve the question of securing a cure, of course, a permanent one, and put an end to these dreadful enemies of humanity? Or do you like to be handicapped in society, in business or in your daily association with your strong, stout friends? For your own good, we would strongly advise you to have an open mind, and to make use of what you can call your true companion, instead of waiting for the time when you are attacked by disease, the youngest daughter of Mr. Fortune, Miss Fortune. When you are living and enjoying the gifts of nature, this unseen thief creeps into your system, and ruins you physically and mentally. Our preparation THE TIGER BALM, which has nothing to do with animal fat, or any injurious substance, will safeguard your interest. When you are in trouble, just pay a few copper coins, and the next moment you will find that this world of sorrow and pain is suddenly changed to one of peace and prosperity.

CORRESPONDENCE

Picnic for Blind.

Sir,—The Committee responsible for the organization of the picnic for the Girls of the Blind Home, Pokfulam, wish to thank all those who assisted in any way to make it the happy event it was. Eighteen motor cars, kindly lent by friends, left the Home at 3 p.m. for Shek O via Tytan. On arriving at Island Bay some girls preferred to sit on the rocks and chatter, while the more venturesome ones went paddling led by willing helpers. This was perhaps the happiest part of the picnic: their joy and laughter made one wish it were possible to take them to the sea more than once in a year.

In the meantime our Chairman, with the help of two scouts was dealing with tea-urns. It was only the promise of tea that enabled us to get the girls out of the water.

Tea for our Blind Guests followed by tea for helpers, and then the distribution of gifts of stockings, soap, towels, handkerchiefs and sweets, brought the picnic to a close. We drove back to the Blind Home where a supper of chicken was provided.

Thanks are gratefully extended to those who so kindly donated money and to those who lent cars for the occasion, to Lt. Col. Robertson for providing cake and boiling water for tea, to Mrs. Kaites for sandwiches, Miss Buehwell for apples, Messrs. W. R. Loxley & Co. for a case of toilet soap, and to the Hongkong Hotel for the loan of kettles.

Donations were received from the following:—Mrs. Rouse, D. Urquhart, K. C. Tsang, H. A. Allen, Mr. Quist, E. J. Lady Pollock, B. C. Randall, J. S. B. Mead, H. B. L. Dowbiggin, W. Allen, Friends in the Naval Yard, R. Baker, anonymous, M. & J. Booker, F. H. G., Mrs. Jefford, M. T. Y., Mm. Drouth, Directors of the Tung Wah Hospital, Mrs. Hooper, Miss Newsholme and the Rotary Club.

Motor cars were kindly lent by Hon. E. D. C. Wolfe, Mrs. Ritchie, Miss Buckwell, Hon. R. H. Koleswall, Capt. Valsey, Messrs. Jefford, Padgett, Kirk, Blizer, Tam, Smith, Randall, Cressey, Low, Petria, May, Strellet.

We are again indebted to Mr. B. C. Randall and the Flying Squad of the Police Reserve for escorting the party to Shek O and back.

D. BOOKER,
Hon. Secretary.

Chairman.

PEIYAN PIRATED

SIX KILLED IN FIERCE-DECK BATTLE

Harbin, Oct. 20.
Twelve bandits, disguised as passengers, perpetrated a terrible outrage on the steamer Peiyan yesterday while the vessel was between Fuchin and Kiamusze, on her way to Harbin.

Following the usual practice of China coast pirates, they struck suddenly, but met with resistance from the passengers and crew.

Three of the passengers and three of the crew lay dead on the deck of the Peiyan before the pirates finally secured control. The captain was wounded in the encounter.

Fourteen passengers, including Mr. Yamaguchi, an employee of the Harbin-Japanese Commercial Exhibition were kidnapped.—Reuter.

LOST ART OF TRAVELLING SHORTCOMINGS OF THE AMERICANS CAN'T GET OUTSIDE OF THEMSELVES

New York.
The art of travelling is lost on the American public, according to Dr. W. Boran Wolfe, psychiatrist, who returned recently from a fifty-four day cruise in which he visited twelve countries.
"Dr. Wolfe said he had spent considerable time on the voyage studying the American as a traveller and decided that he 'simply does not know how to travel.'"
"Our group was composed of representative people from cities of all sizes, and men in all fields of endeavour," Dr. Wolfe said. "Almost exclusively each passenger carried into Europe his own home town environment. It never left them in Funchal, in Rome, in Kotor, or in Scandinavia.

"Few of them were elastic enough to get anything out of our journey. They went into sacred places, into ancient buildings, into places of rare historical lore, and came out comparing the coffee to the coffee they got back home in Main Street."
"NOT SO OLD-FASHIONED."
Dr. Wolfe said he listened to remarks of the tourists in every city and found they were shrugging their shoulders and telling each other how much better things were back home.

"They said Oriental dancers were not as graceful as the troupe at the Rialto Palace back home, that the taxicabs were out of date and couldn't compare with the cabs in Milwaukee and that the hotels were shabby and not up-to-date," the psychiatrist declared.
"In the venerated buildings of Mediterranean cities, instead of drinking in the beauty and lore of early civilizations, they were heading about this and that and comparing it to the bank building at home.

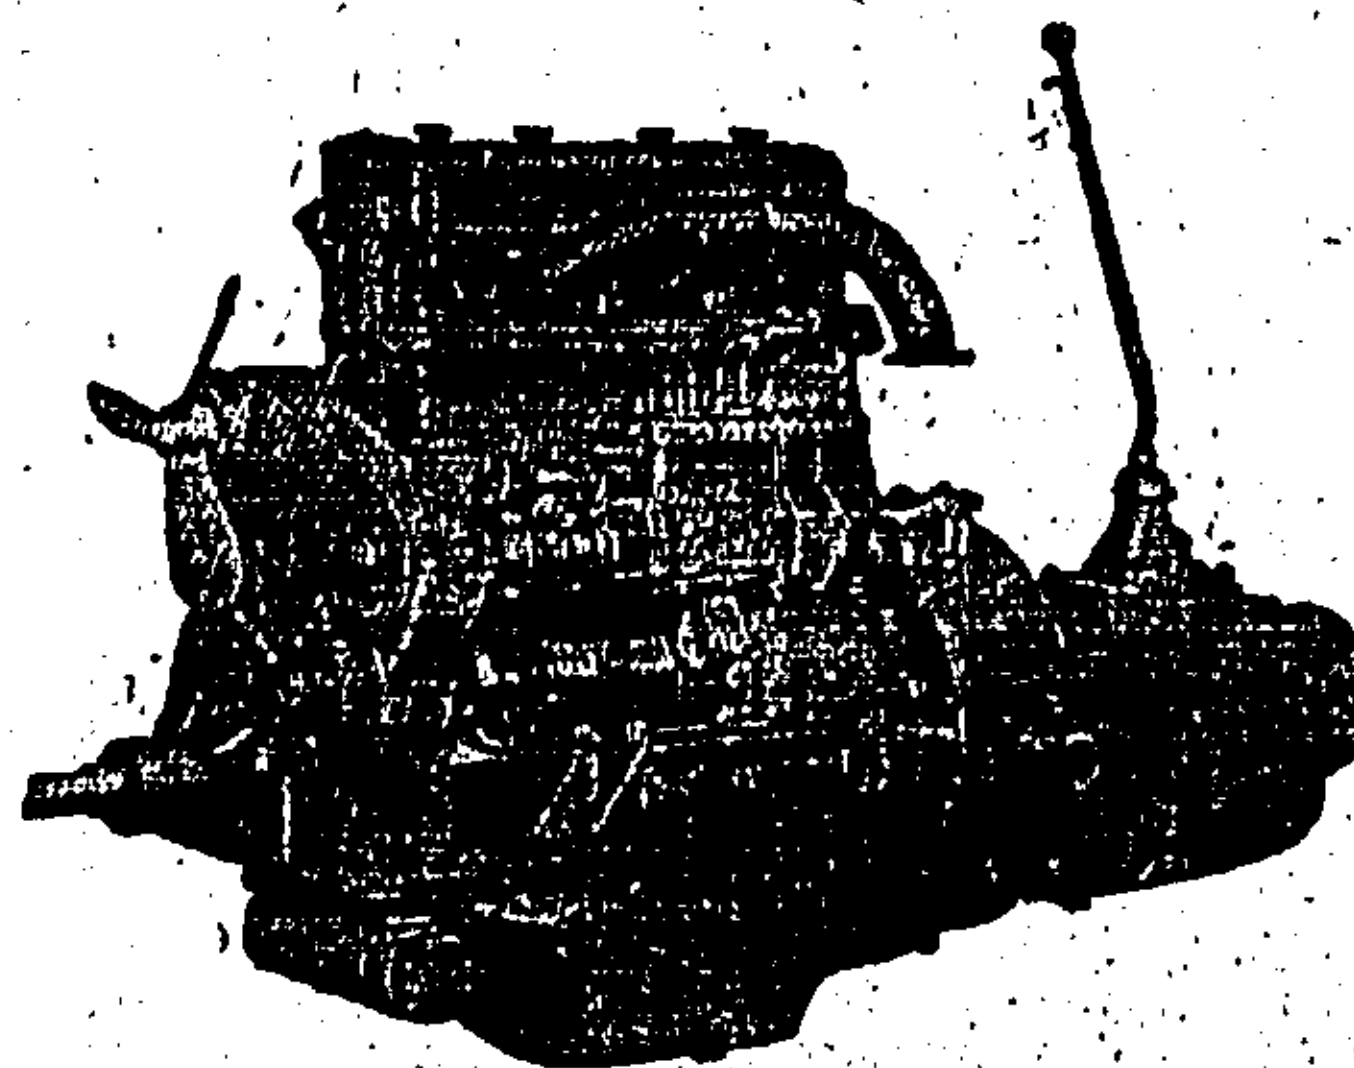

As the tourists came out of St. Peter's in Rome, Dr. Wolfe said he remarked to a traveller from a large New Jersey city. "Well, we haven't anything like that in New Jersey, have we?"

The tourist snorted.
"I should say not," he replied.
"We wouldn't have anything so old-fashioned in our city."—Reuter.

NEW TYPE OF MAN

MAY BE UTTERLY DIFFERENT
BUT OF GREATER INTELLECT

Startling theories were advanced by Dr. C. C. Hurst of Cambridge, at the British Association meetings this year, regarding the future of the evolution of man.

In a special statement Dr. Hurst discussed the possibility of:
A type of being, utterly different from the present human species, scarcely human, save in mind and thought, and on a higher intellectual plane.

In fact, he said, there seemed to be no valid scientific objection to the belief in a future existence in the form of pure thought or spirit.

Dr. Hurst's predictions at the meetings of the British Association were of the most confident character, for he has probably made a great number of practical experiments in genetics (heredity and variation) than anyone in the country.

The full account of these experiments, published in his book,
"The Mechanism of Creative Evolution," is arousing intense interest among scientists, especially of the younger school, throughout the world.

Dr. Hurst, in expanding his theories said:

"There are definite indications in the present century that under the influence of the mind of man creative evolution may be speeded up, and it is possible that the next great step, surpassing mind, may be evolved in much less time than the 1,000,000,000 years estimated for the evolution of life and mind.

"Mind is gradually increasing in influence at the expense of matter, and it is reasonable to infer that in course of time, when the next great step in creative evolution appears, the influence of matter will have been considerably reduced and displaced by mind and its unknown successor.

MATTER MAY BE ABOLISHED.

"The inference is that in the course of long ages successors of man will be evolved in whom the influence of matter has been almost, if not entirely, obliterated, and a type of being will arise utterly different from the present human species, scarcely human save in mind and thought, but on a higher intellectual plane.

"Such an independence of matter would enable the more adventurous of our far-away descendants to leave the earth and to visit and people other planets in our solar system, or other stellar systems of our universe, and even other universes, if they exist.

"There seems to be no valid scientific objection to the belief in a future existence in the form of pure thought or spirit.

"Such beings may exist in other parts of the universe as a product of creative evolution in other planets."

HAS EVOLUTION STOPPED?

Dr. G. Elliot Smith, the eminent anthropologist, seemed less sanguine about the evolutionary future of the world. He said to a reporter:

"I have followed Dr. Hurst's researches with the greatest interest.
"I believe they have very great importance as applied to plants and animals. But I do not at present see the possibility of applying them to anything so complex as the human organism.

"It is impossible for us to say whether a species higher than man will ultimately be evolved. There is no evidence that such a species is being evolved. But the experiments of Dr. Hurst increase the possibility that it may happen.
The evolutionary process as applied to man appears to have stopped for reasons in the world itself."

Professor Julian Huxley expressed the view that improvements in the human race by means of artificial variation and selection could be carried out.

"Past experiences with other organisms have shown us that it is entirely practical, he said "if we take the trouble, we can do it.
Those who have studied the subject have held this view for some considerable time."

DANZIG

Danzig, the queen city of the Baltic, may well prove to be the heart of the European problem. That it recently voted for the National Socialists in the municipal elections is merely a reminder that, whatever statesmen determine, it is essentially a German city, and that by sentiment, by historic ties, and by political necessity, it must attach itself to Berlin rather than to Warsaw or to Geneva. Yet the peace-makers of Paris did not act without some reason. They had promised Poland free access to the sea. A new great country could hardly be created in the interior of Europe without assuring to it a natural outlet. Thus it came about that the port at the mouth of the Vistula was, despite its German character, allocated to the newborn state. Good observers believe that in another generation Poland will have a population of forty millions. The great European powers do not, speaking generally, greatly exceed that figure. France, Italy and Great Britain have populations of between forty and fifty millions. Other elements than mere mass are needed to constitute a first-class power, but it is obvious that Poland had a right to demand a port of its own. The compromise that was made in the case of Danzig was not satisfactory. The city was given a complicated regime. It and its surrounding area are nominally independent under the protection of the League of Nations; it has an economic union with Poland though the city administers the customs within its boundaries. Poles and Danzigers sit under the presidency of a Swiss on the special port authority. Foreign relations are under Polish control. Yet Danzig possesses a government which it is allowed to elect indirectly—for the President and Senate are appointed by the Volkstag—the Danzig Parliament. This is a crazy-quilt arrangement, and unless there is the greatest good will the machinery is far too cumbersome to work well. Unhappily, good will has not been shown. The Danzigers believe that the object of Poland in building a new port, Gdynia, out of a little village of fishermen's huts, was to ruin Danzig. It seemed inevitable, therefore, that Danzig would vote for the National Socialist, and thus sentimentally at least join up with Germany. The movement for a more formal return to Germany must, it would seem, develop. It is not proposed to alter the constitution forcibly, but if it is represented at Geneva that the whole purpose of Danzig is working toward a radical change, it will be difficult eventually to refuse revision of statutes made fourteen years ago. Present conditions cannot endure without provoking friction. It is impossible to colonize Danzig. But it should surely be possible to come to an agreement, by which the Poles will be assured of access to the

NOTES OF THE DAY

MONARCHIST RUMOURS

Rumours of the impending revival of the monarchy in Austria, or in Hungary, have been revived by the visit of the ex-Empress Zita to Rome, reported a day or two ago. Austria is the first guess and with Dr. Dollfuss and Prince von Starhemberg in combination, the rumours have been gaining pace. But there are immense practical difficulties in the way of the return of Otto. The palaces of the Hofburg and Schonbrunn were built for an Empire. They are ludicrously out of place in a country now about two-thirds the size of England. The expense of keeping them up would be insupportable. Then there would be all the royal relations to be provided for. The Empress Zita, the mother of Otto, is herself one of seventeen children. A Restoration is really only practical politics if the Austro-Hungarian Empire were re-created. But if that were done the modern Hungary, being larger than the modern Austria, would certainly insist that the capital should be Budapest. Moreover, the dominant party in Hungary, led by General Gombos and the Regent Admiral Horthy, is against a Monarchy.

DIFFERENT INTERESTS

Austria and Hungary have quite different interests. Hungary concentrates her whole purpose on revision of treaties. Austria has no hunger for lost territories, except, perhaps, in the Tyrol. But she is quite prepared to cede what she has lost there in perpetuity, if it will secure Italy's friendship. Then there is Czechoslovakia, carved out of the old Austro-Hungarian Empire, which has no intention of surrendering its independence. Sentiment as a basis of government is not enough. There has to be some economic advantage and that is singularly lacking in the question of a restoration or Kingship to Austria.

AND IN GERMANY?

Hints of a German restoration, while more credible, seem equally unlikely to be translated into action at this time. The temper of the German people is such that the return of the Hohenzollerns would probably prove highly popular, but the decision does not rest with the people as a whole; it is a matter for Herr Hitler, and he is nearer to the Presidency of the Reich to-day than at any time before. The man is such a mixture that it is difficult to estimate what part ambition plays in his tactical moves. If compelled to decide, he will probably come to the conclusion that his chances of pushing his programme through to triumph are better as President of the Reich than as His Imperial Majesty's Chancellor.

NAVY NEEDS

Demands for the strengthening of the British Navy are becoming more insistent. First Sir Erle Chatfield and then Lord Beatty have pointed to the dangerously weakened level to which our naval forces have been permitted to fall. These famous naval chiefs go beyond the issue of whether Britain can afford it, and insist that new construction is essential to safety. The layman wonders. He agrees that no-one can be certain exactly what attitude the United States would adopt in a crisis. It is doubtful whether the President could give a definite answer on that score to-day. At the same time, precipitancy may do more harm than good. Britain has set an example in the way of disarmament, even at the cost of Admiral Beatty's allegations of a deplorable blunder in agreeing to a maximum of fifty cruisers. A move in the other direction might be fatal all round.

THE RISKS

Even at a risk, it may be necessary for Britain to preserve the status of the world's sheet-anchor with the air so full of talk of war. We must at least carry on until the last possible moment. There are going to be difficulties enough at the naval conference of 1935 without all three of the principal Powers embarking on the discussions in a spirit of "We Must Have More," instead of "Cannot We All Do With Less." The new regulations approved in Japan give to the chiefs of the Japanese Navy the power to veto any proposed reduction in the Japanese naval forces even if the Japanese Cabinet is in favour of it. Only Viscount Ishii has come out openly to point to the dangers of such wide powers, and he is to be congratulated upon his courage. And it is well-known that the Japanese naval authorities are more disposed to increase than decrease. That is where the United States has made a fatal mistake in authorising such a huge programme of construction. If Britain thought of following the example, nothing could save a menacing race.

sea, and Danzig will be able to exercise the famous "right of self-determination" if only cool heads are kept.

THE EVER-ROLLING STONE

By E. L. ALLEN

THE old Greeks used to tell the story of a man who for his extreme wickedness in this world was punished after a very exasperating fashion in the next. He was set to roll a huge marble block up a hill. Tiring and sweating, he would manage to get it somewhere near the top, when the weight would prove too much for him, and the stone would come hurtling down again. So that his task was never completed.

Now Sisyphus was allowed an annual holiday on his birthday—this, by the way, does not belong to the original story—and on one occasion, feeling specially sore about his treatment, he slipped out of the underworld and found consolation by appearing on earth and persuading a large number of its inhabitants to follow his example. For our industrialism is his invention; it is the rolling stone which gathers no moss and never reaches the top of the hill!

There is an economic dogma the justice of which is generally assumed, but which demands to be called in question. The assumption is that in an industrial country, while a certain number of its people may legitimately draw dividends or own land and others may enter professions, the major portion of them can only expect to get a living as they find jobs somewhere in the industrial process. That may have been the case a century or more ago, when industry was straining every nerve to meet the large-scale demands of a rapidly growing population, and when human slaves were still the main source of energy. But whether this law "if you want to consume, you must first produce," tempered as it is by insurance and charity, can any longer hold the field, is a matter for doubt.

THE REAL VALUE OF WORK

We tend at times to speak as though work were a virtue, and the harder one worked, the greater the virtue. But work is of value only as a means to an end; it is good if done for a good reason and to achieve something which can be considered worth while. If work were a virtue in itself, then we must yield the prize for morality to the machines: they can work harder and better than we can, and ask for very little reward into the bargain! A man may start early and retire late, he may "scroo de-lights and live laborious days" in order to persuade the community to buy a patent medicine which does more harm than good. He is a model of industry, efficiency, and painstaking labour, but he is a social danger all the same!

What is prosperity? I heard one of our economists describe prosperity for Britain as a condition in which we should not spend the interest we received from our overseas investments, but would re-invest it, so keeping our whole population at work! Some of us had thought that the proper use of the wealth which had been created by the labour and saving of our grandfathers and fathers would be to enable us, their children, to enter into a fuller, richer life. It is so in the family. But it is not so in the nation, we are told. The ripe fruit of the vast industrial effort of last century is gathered in when it is used to promote a still vaster effort in our day, and to secure to every man the privilege of working so as to secure for his children the privilege of working so as to—and so on!

THIS "RECOVERY" QUESTION

What do we mean by "recovery"? Most people mean by that a state of things in which all the unemployed are absorbed into industry, as the phrase has it. But is that the point at which to begin, after all? Is not the first thing to devise some means of dissipating the wealth which our technical skill has enabled us to produce, and then to spread out the amount of work which would be required to maintain the standard of life which is judged desirable? May we not need to go through a mental revolution, so that we shall be able to pass over from a society in which men work to eat to one in which they eat to work? Is not that the more natural order, after all? We arrive in the world with appetites first and get jobs afterwards. It looks as though nature intended us to have our economic needs met first, so that we might be ready after that to embark on the adventure of really living. It is we who have reversed the order and so reduced living for most people to the business of earning a livelihood.

We follow at present two conflicting purposes, and we must choose between them. If we believe that man was set on this planet to work eight hours a day in a factory or seven and a half in a mine and that any departure from this is conducive to laziness and moral degeneration, let us break up our machines and carry on. If, on the other hand, we hold that industry is not life itself but a means to life, and that life consists in such things as an intelligent interest in human destiny, an appreciation of art, worship and fellowship, let us thank God for machines and get down to the real business of existence.

REAL MEANING OF WORK

It is said, of course, that men will not work except under pressure of need, and that to say "Here is your daily bread, now go out and work!" would mean that everybody would stay at home and there would be no bread for anyone. I doubt it. Human nature is compounded, I imagine, of activity and inertia in about equal amounts. Our wage-earning is a scheme to overcome human inertia; what we have not as yet as the mass of the people is concerned, is an appeal to that in them which is craving to do something really worth while. Among the millions who work to-day, the real meaning of work is hidden from most. To be able to put one's whole soul into something, to be able to stand back from it and to say "This is mine, I did it, and the world is richer for my deed!" is the privilege of only a few. A Machine Age is the heaven-sent opportunity to make this the birthright of all.

BULLS AND INNERS

From the Office Butts

It is only to be expected that beauty specialists are secretive. Naturally they do not like to give away wrinkles.

We understand that haggis is coming out by air mail this year. We hope this will not cloud the issue!

We hear of a lady who took her watch to a second-hand shop to have one put on!

To-day in the garden. Hoe round the colery; trim the privet hedge; cut the cackles, but be careful not to rake up the past.

We hear of a local football forward who saw his best girl in the crowd and turned back.

This week's poser. Do book-worms make good bait?

Hongkong may lack open spaces, but some of our youthful motorists seem to get plenty of fun at some of our parks.

"Generally speaking" states a London writer "cats are not intelligent." We've noticed the same about hens.

Men who wear closely-collared shirts may not have any home ties.

A man may accept a girl at her own valuation—if her figure is a reasonable one.

In submitting a suggested "bull" this week, a reader writes "If the enclosed is hopeless, please say so." So!

According to a recent visitor, a great deal of Hongkong's charm lies in its many shops. Counter attractions.

From this week's mail bag, "I would like to start work in the Telegraph office."—Too late, it started years ago!

The only voice some husbands get in running the home is the invoice.

If you marry the right woman, there's nothing like it. If you marry the wrong woman, there's nothing like it, too.

Business is improving. We hear of a well-known resident who only played nine holes the other afternoon because he felt he must get back to the office.

We have heard it rumoured that a certain local lady motorist came into slight collision with the car of another fair driver recently and subsequently suggested that the other vehicle "was a very cheap car." Of course, she couldn't miss a bargain.

Some doctors believe that people will soon live to be 100. They have always been fond of making patients say 99!

Some of our bachelor motorists seem more concerned with the number of gale per mile.

A London authority asserts that prima donnas sing loudest when nearing fifty years of age. What about the Roaring Forties!

We understand that the judges in a recent "beautiful lips" competition, failed to pay sufficient attention to the smacks factor.

"Let's stop in and see Doris. She never misses a thing you have on."

TRAFALGAR DAY

CENOTAPH

TO-DAY'S PLANS

To-day the Senior Service celebrates the victory of Nelson at Trafalgar and this morning an impressive wreath laying ceremony took place at the Cenotaph which was attended by a distinguished gathering including His Excellency the Governor, Sir William Peel, K.C.M.G., K.B.E., and Capt. Euan Wallace, Civil Lord of the Admiralty.

As a preliminary to the day's proceedings, Nelson's famous signal—"England Expects Every Man To Do His Duty"—was hoisted simultaneously at 8 a.m. on H.M. Ships in the Harbour and all Merchant ships dressed overall at the same time. The cross-harbour Ferry boats were also decked with gay bunting.

From an early hour lady flag sellers, dressed in the uniform of Naval ratings, were stationed at every vantage point and few escaped their notice. The response by the public to their appeal was most gratifying.

The collectors on the mainland were—Mrs. Binnie, Miss Bilderbeck, Miss H. Boyd, Miss J. Boyd, Mrs. Barry, Mrs. Finlay, Miss Hull, Mrs. Gray, Mrs. MacCartan, Mrs. Ralch, Mrs. Webb, Mrs. Whitlam, Miss Whitlam, Miss M. Whitlam and Mrs. Mackie.

Manners, representing the Commander-in-Chief of the China Squadron, Admiral Sir Frederic C. Dreyer, K.C.B., C.B.E., Commodore Frank Elliott, O.B.E., R.N., Mr. A. L. On the arrival of His Excellency, the parade was called to attention by the Officer-in-Charge of the Parade, Lieut. Comdr. A. L. Tidd, of H.M.S. Suffolk, and representatives of the Navy League were introduced to His Excellency at the junction of Chater and Jackson Roads.

Following the wreath-laying, buglers from H.M. Ships sounded the "Last Post" and "Reveille," after which His Excellency walked round the parade.

As soon as the Governor had left a seven-foot model of "H.M.S. Victory" which had been positioned outside the Hongkong Club was drawn round the City on a gun carriage by the Berwick's gun carriage crew accompanied by lady flag sellers.

NANKING SPORTS.

National Meeting
Comes To Close.

SHANGHAI'S HONOUR.

Nanking, Oct. 20.

The National Sports Meeting was brought to a successful close yesterday, the tenth and the last day of the meeting, when, in ideal conditions, the final matches of various tournaments were played off. Shanghai had the lion's share of championship honours. The Shanghai ladies carried away the championships in the track and field events, in basketball and volleyball. The men did even better. They ran away worthy champions in the field events, the track events, and the all-round individual events, in football, tennis and volleyball. Hongkong has to thank their fair representatives for their solitary win in the aquatic sports.

Before an enthusiastic crowd of some 40,000 spectators, the Canton soccer team went down to the Shanghai team to the tune of three goals to nil. The score, however, was a fair indication of the match. The southern players had a fair share of the game, and were extremely unlucky not to have opened the scoring before the interval. With a steady breeze in their favour, the Cantonese forwards showed good understanding and teamwork. But invariably they failed to drive home their advantage at crucial moments.

The excellent goal-keeping of Chow, the Shanghai goalie, was the feature of the match. He dealt with all manner of shots with perfect coolness, and effected five or six most spectacular saves which deservedly won the applause of the crowd. At half-time, there was no score. In the opening stages of the second half, Canton was still on the offensive. Then, slowly but surely, the Shanghai forwards got the upper hand. Within twenty minutes, they found the net three times. Nothing daunted, the southern team fought bravely to turn the tables, but it was all over. Shanghai won the match and the championship amidst prolonged cheers and loud applause.

TENNIS TOURNEY.

Gordon Lum (Szechuan) lost to Khoo Hoo-hye (Shanghai) in the tennis singles. Lum took the first set after twelve games, and then lost the next three sets. The scores in Khoo's favour were 5-7, 6-0, 6-4 and 6-3.

The closing ceremonies are to be performed to-day when prizes will be distributed to successful competitors. Messrs. Lin Son, Wang Ching-wei and Sun Fo will address the gathering.

The detailed results of the day are given below:

SHY
DICTATORDR. SALAZAR AND ENGLANDFIRM FRIENDSHIP
SWORN

Lisbon.
Firm friendship with Britain, her old ally, is a corner stone of the foreign policy of Portugal's ex-schoolmaster-dictator, Dr. Antonio de Oliveira Salazar, he declares in an interview with the "Diario de Noticias."

"The present government is a conscientious friend of England and I will do my best to make our alliance not a mere 'flower of rhetoric' but a reality based upon economic, financial and political interests to our mutual advantage," he said.

Turning to international affairs, Dr. Salazar expressed the opinion that the London Economic Conference had failed and that its failure added fresh proof of the weakness of democracy in international affairs.

Economic warfare between the nations will continue, he declared, because there is no central power to direct the world economic policy. But if military disarmament is ever to be achieved there must first be economic disarmament for "this is the surest means of destroying a state of mind which provokes war itself."

"IRON MAN"

Although he has been Portugal's "Iron Man" for the past five years, Dr. Salazar retains the simple tastes of his early years, when he was the son of a hard-working farmer. There is nothing of the bombastic drumbeater about him and unlike Signor Mussolini or Herr Hitler he systematically avoids popular demonstrations.

When he can snatch a few days from affairs of state there is nothing he likes more than to rush off to the little farmhouse where he was reared. It is looked after by an old servant who still calls him "Master Antonio", and his sister who teaches in the village school lives there. The Dictator seems never so happy as when he is helping to prune the fruit trees in his orchard or helping the farm-hand with the cattle on the little farm of his boyhood, far from the "maddening crowd" and the cares of politics.—Reuter.

a priceless safeguard to teeth

—an entirely new cleansing and polishing material has been developed that is twice as soft as polishing materials commonly used in tooth pastes. Gives teeth a higher polish, brighter lustre—FILM stains disappear completely.

THE Pepsodent Laboratories announce a revolutionary discovery—a new cleansing and polishing material for tooth paste. For six months Pepsodent Tooth Paste has contained this remarkable new material. It possesses three exclusive virtues:

3. It is safe because it is soft—yes, twice as soft—as polishing materials in common use.

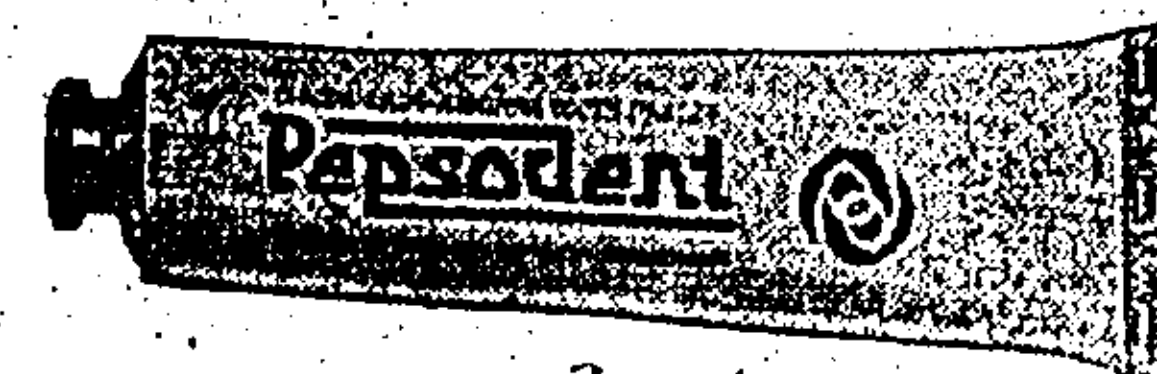

Yet in taste and appearance Pepsodent is still the Pepsodent you have always known. In results and safety it is new—brand new.

TREAT FOR SHANGHAI SWIMMERS

MEETING ELECT OF CHINA

GALA TO-NIGHT

LOCAL SWIMMERS TO TAKE PART

Another page in the history of Shanghai swimming has been written by the Shanghai Amateur Swimming Association.

For the first time, a women's team will represent the Association in a match against a team of Chinese women selected from the Nanking competitors, and

For the first time, a representative team of Shanghai men will compete for honours against the best available talent from Chinese swimmers.

The gala will take place at the Foreign Y.M.C.A. this evening and on October 23.

These decisions were reached last week at a meeting of the S.A.S.A. held to consider an invitation extended by the Chinese officials.

THE PROGRAMME.

It was decided that the following events will be contested:

Women: 50 yards free style, 100 yards free style, 50 yards breast stroke, 50 yards backstroke, relay.

Men: 50 yards free style, 100 yards free style, 220 yards free style, 440 yards free style, 100 yards breast stroke, 100 yards backstroke, medley swim, medley relay, diving, water polo.

The best swimmers among the visiting team will come from the South China team, who boast of some strong swimmers. They have won a number of events in South China against some of the best foreign teams and are expected to fight on even terms with the local side. The form of the Chinese women's team is not known, but is expected they will provide good competition.

Points for the contests will be scored as they were in the recent interport at Kobe, and it will be interesting to see what the aggregate results show. The visiting team is now contesting in the swimming events at Nanking and were due to arrive in Shanghai yesterday. They will stay there for four days, and leave for the south by the Empress of Canada sailing on October 26.

Shanghai's selections point to the probable inclusion of those who represented them in the past interport, though there are several others who may be available, while J. R. Moffatt, the backstroke champion is still away and probably will not be here in time to participate. The local women's team will be picked from those who won the championships, and in all they should have a fine all round team.

Another Perfect Team

FOR INTERPORT CRICKET

(To the Editor, Hongkong Telegraph.)

Sir:—May I be permitted to suggest my ideal Hongkong interport cricket eleven.

Here is my ideal team:

H. Owen Hughes (Captain)
E. C. Fincher
T. A. Pearce
F. D. Pereira
P. V. Williams
G. C. Garthwaite
G. C. Burnett
A. R. Mina
A. H. Madar
G. S. Dunkley
A. C. Hamilton

I think the above selected team will do Hongkong very good service. There is a wealth of batsmen and bowlers.

Yours etc.,
CHUCKER.

BORDERERS WIN POLO CUP

BEAT CIVILIAN TEAM

The South Wales Borderers yesterday won the "Koyll Cup" Polo competition when they defeated the Civilian side by seven goals to two on the Polo Ground at Causeway Bay.

The event was also the occasion of an At Home given by the Royal Artillery Officers, and amongst those present were H.E. the Governor, Sir William Peel, and Lady Peel, Brigadier R. B. Cousins and Miss Cousins, Commodore and Mrs. Frank Elliott, Hon. Dr. R. H. Kotelwall, Lieut-Col. and Mrs. Carrington Sykes, Col. and Mrs. Nosworthy, Cdr. and Lady Mary Barton, Countess Fernhill, Lieut-Col. J. H. Thom, Squadron Leader and Mrs. P. C. Wood, Mrs. Rakos and Miss Mackie.

TROPHY PRESENTED.

At the conclusion of the game the trophy was presented to the Borderers by Lady Peel. In asking her Ladyship to make the presentation, Col. Nosworthy congratulated the Borderers on winning. He said the game had been "up and down" throughout, although the Borderers were slightly better than their opponents.

After the cup had been handed to Capt. Villar, the Borderers' skipper, three cheers were called for Lady Peel by Col. Nosworthy.

The play on the whole was of a mediocre standard with the Borderers superior. They kept the Civilian on the defensive most of the game. The last chukker was the most evenly contested, the Civilian taking a while to settle down.

The Borderers' team comprised Col. T. Rakos at No. 3, Capt. P. L. Villar at back, Lieut. J. L. Jordan at No. 2 and Lieut. J. W. Hope at No. 1.

The Civilian side was made up of W.H.S. Dent at back, Robin Gordon at No. 3, W. T. Stanton at No. 2, and H. C. Macnamara at No. 1.

CHUCKER BY CHUCKER.

The Borderers took up pressure from the start, but failed to score. The Civilian took up the offensive and near the goal Villar stopped the rush, the ball going behind. Jordan intercepted and hit out, and with a second attempt opened the scoring. Villar took play up the field from the throw-in and Hope increased the Borderers' lead with a nice hit from the right. Dent was conspicuous, and scored the ball with a hard hit well down the field. Rakos relieved, and Hope taking up his clearing hit smartly and scored the third goal. The Civilian pressed with Stanton sending across a nice shot straight to the goal. Jordan intercepted and hit to the boards. Just before the bell Dent reduced the lead with a well-placed shot.

In the second chukker, Jordan stopped the hit out, but the ball was returned. Dent did some fine defending, stopping two rushes by Hope, but the latter eventually scored. This goal was followed by a deal of mid-field play, with Gordon breaking away to be stopped by Rakos and Jordan. Villar was pressed by Stanton but Rakos came up to relieve.

The Borderers then visited the other end and Hope rode off Dent.

FINAL LEAGUE TABLES

C.R.C. Head All Four Divisions

YEAR OF REMARKABLE ACHIEVEMENT

(By "Veritas").

The University yesterday succeeded in completing their programme in the "A" Division of the Lawn Tennis League, and the season has now officially closed.

Of the 210 fixtures in the four divisions, only three remain unplayed, an eloquent testimony to the enthusiasm of the clubs in the face of disappointing weather which caused ruptured programmes.

Yesterday the Hongkong Cricket Club easily beat the luckless University winning eight of the nine sets. The scores were:

L. Goldman and A. L. Sullivan (H.K.C.C.) beat H. N. Lee and Y. K. Ng 6-0; beat P. C. Lee and Salvo 6-2; beat M. C. Hung and K. M. Lo 6-2.

CHEERFUL!

New York.
Dr. Marvin A. Stevens, former head football coach at Yale University, has forecast that between 30 and 40 youths will die on the football field in America this season.

He said that too many youngsters particularly on playground and high-school teams, are using inferior equipment and playing without proper supervision.

G. W. Sewell and C. E. Holmes (H.K.C.C.) beat Lee and Ng 6-3; beat Lee and Salvo 6-4; beat Hung and Lo 6-1.

A. Humphreys and R. H. Wild (H.K.C.C.) lost to Lee and Ng 6-6; beat Lee and Salvo 6-4; beat Hung and Lo 6-2.

AMAZING RECORD.

As it has already been announced, the Chinese Recreation Club swept the board this summer, winning, for the first time in the history of the local league, the A, B, C and Mixed Doubles Divisions without the loss of a single match.

Their four champion teams have the following amazing collective record for the season.

Two Men Dismiss A Team

SMART BOWLING By R.E.s

Sapper Tucker and Sapper Wells formed a very successful alliance to dismiss the Royal Signals for 33 runs in the Small Units Cricket League yesterday.

Tucker captured seven wickets for as many runs, Wells obtained the other three for 22 runs and it was Wells who caught out one of Tucker's victims.

No other member of the Royal Engineers team had a direct hand in the dismissal of any of the Signals.

The Royal Engineers won easily by 139 runs.

FOOTBALL SUSPENSIONS

PUNISHMENT FOR FOUR PLAYERS

The Emergency Committee of the Hongkong Football Association have suspended four players who for various reasons, received marching orders in recent matches.

J. Bowen of the Recreio has been suspended until November 3 for rough play against the Police on September 30.

A. Moss of the Police has been given a similar suspension for rough play in the same match.

Wong Sik-ping, the Athletic left back, who jumped at Gomes whilst he was trying to rob Li Kwok-ik of the ball in the Governor's Cup match on October 10, has been suspended until November 3.

H. Bux, of the Radio sent off last week for rough play against the Royal Engineers, has been barred from football until October 27.

BODY LINE BOWLING.

Board Of Control Convene Another Meeting.

Adelaido, Oct. 20.

A special meeting of the Australian Board of Control has been convened for November 16 to discuss the Marylebone C.C.s cable regarding "body line bowling."

This is following the dissatisfaction of several members of the board, who state that the M.C.C., although agreeing that bowling directly at the batsman would be an offence and against the spirit of the game, did not give any assurance that these tactics would not be used.—Reuter.

LOCAL ESTATES

CONCUBINE MENTALLY DERANGED

Miu Yiu-pik, late of 28, Gough Street, lost a $22,000 local estate, letters of administration to which were granted to his concubine and to his son Mui Nai-woot, of 62, Wing Lok Street in 1931. The latter applied for the revocation of these letters on the ground that the concubine had become mentally deranged. The revocation was made and Mui Nai-woot has been granted administration of the estate with the provision that his former co-administrator may reapply if she recovers her sanity.
Chu Duet-ching, late accountant to Chiu Kee, of 11, Mott Street,
New York, died on June 28, 1929, leaving $2,000. Letters of administration have been granted to the widow Chiu Mak-shi, of Tol Shan.

MUCH ADO ABOUT NOTHING.

MISTAKE WHICH BRINGS OUT FIRE BRIGADE

Some women burning joss-papers on the roof of No. 11, Leighton Hill Road, occasioned some alarm shortly after 7 o'clock last evening, and a public-spirited citizen quick to detect danger shouted "fire."
The resulting call to the Police and Fire Stations brought two engines to the house, when the case was viewed in its proper light.
The firemen, however, remained for some minutes to ascertain that no danger was caused to the building, and finally withdrew, with a warning to the inmates.

DIVORCE ORDINANCE

PROCLAMATION ISSUED

TO BE IN FORCE
ON NOV. 1

The following Proclamation appears in the Government Gazette this morning.

By His Excellency Sir William Peel, Knight-Commander of the Most Distinguished Order of Saint
Michael and Saint George, Knight
Commander of the Most Excellent
Order of the British Empire,
Governor and Commander-in-Chief of the Colony of Hong Kong and its Dependencies and Vice-Admiral of the same.

Whereas by section 49 of the Divorce Ordinance, 1932, (Ordinance No. 35 of 1932), it is provided that the said Ordinance shall not come into operation unless and until the Governor notifies by Proclamation that it is His Majesty's pleasure not to disallow
the same and that thereafter it shall come into operation upon such day as the Governor shall notify by the same or any other Proclamation:

And Whereas by section 6 of the
Divorce Amendment Ordinance,
1933, (Ordinance No. 9 of 1933), it is provided that that Ordinance shall be read and construed as one with, and shall come into operation at the same time as, the Divorce Ordinance, 1932, which it amends and which shall not be brought into operation by Proclamation until His Majesty's pleasure not to disallow the said frontier defences to meet possible contingencies.

The Belgian Government has allotted further funds to strengthen the country's defences, while the immensely strong chain of deep trenches and casemates for the heavily armed forces on the north-east frontier of France have been carried to an advanced stage.

POLISH FEELING.

That Poland feels the situation is insecure, is evident from a speech in the Diet, in which a speaker aroused enthusiastic cheers by declaring that Poland would never surrender the Province of Pomerania, the so-called "Polish Corridor," without fighting.

At Prague, a high official expressed the views of the Czecho-Slovakian Government in these words:

"Any anti-war treaty, as far as Czecho-Slovakia is concerned, can be arrived at only with military force."

Even the Swiss Government intends to seek further appropriations totalling 100,000,000 francs, to increase armaments, while Denmark has already done so.—
Reuter.

Divorce Amendment Ordinance,
1933, is known:

Now I, the said Sir William Peel, do hereby notify that it is His Majesty's pleasure not to disallow
either of the said Ordinance (No.
35 of 1932, and No. 9 of 1933) and
